HISTORY AND THEORY:
THE EARLY MODER ERA IN WORLD HISTORY

This course will begin with a couple of books that suggest theoretical approaches to World History (and to History in General). We will then work through three major works that tackle very large parts of the world – The African Atlantic, the Indian Ocean, and Southeast Asia. The rest of the course consists of a variety of books on smaller topics. In each case we are interested in the content, but also in the author's underlying assumptions and methodology.

Alternative readings and additions to the list are open to negotiation.

Unit One: Theory (?)
